The plane plucked the fishermen from a sinking sampan after it had "found" a "raft" off the coast of Hawaii. Capt. Frank M. Lese explained he did not dare attempt a take off in the heavy seas with the added weight of the five fishermen. (AP wirephoto)

Noted Over Yield Right of Signs; Chief Explains Regulation

Chief of police explained the regulation of yield right of way signs at a recent city council meeting. Chief Gillette explained that the yield right of way signs are not identical with stop signs. They do mean, however, that cars approaching a corner where such a sign has been erected must slow down to make sure no traffic is coming from the left and the right before proceeding across the intersection. It should be noted, he says, these cars must stop and allow traffic to pass whether it comes from the right or the left. In other words, the rule that cars approaching from the left must stop does not apply at intersections where yield right of way signs have been erected.

World Day of Prayer Service To Mark First Friday of Lent

A central part of the service in the prayer for understanding among all peoples for the growth of the Christian church around the world and for world peace. It stresses the unity of all Christians through separated by geographical and national boundaries. The World Day of Prayer dates back to 1887 when a Presbyterian woman in Boston called for a nationwide day of prayer for home missions. In 1920, the idea was adopted in Canada and seven years later, at the request of Christian leaders in other lands, it became a world-wide observance. The day's service begins as the sun rises over the "Tiger Islands" and continues around the world until darkness settles over Alaska 24 hours later.

Air Force to Change NCO

The prestige, authority and leadership of the non-commissioned officer is receiving re-emphasis in the air force's 1955 re-enlistment program, according to M/Sgt. Harry Marsh, recruiter here. Sgt. Marsh says the new policy is designed to give individual importance to each airman. The policy includes special attention to educational, recreational and social programs and facilities for the airman and his family. To provide adequate housing for single airmen, permanent dormitory-type barracks are being constructed. In job assignments the new policy is most apparent, Sergeant Marsh said. The new policy calls for non-commissioned officer assignments of increased complexity and responsibility.

Defense Pact On Southeast Asia Ratified

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 19 (AP)—The SEATO nations ratified their collective defense treaty of Sept. 8, 1954, in a simple 23-minute ceremony today.

Carlos P. Garcia, vice president and foreign secretary, began receiving the instruments of ratification from diplomatic representatives in the main hall of the new department of foreign affairs building at 11 a. m.

The diplomats sat around the same horseshoe-shaped conference table they used in forging the alliance here last year.

The powers presented their documents of ratification in alphabetical order—Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, United Kingdom of Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States.

Twenty-three minutes later the ceremony was over, and Garcia declared the "Southeast Asia conference defense treaty" and the protocol thereto are in full force and effect.

Tame Falcon Attends Gooding Confab, Sits Quietly on Stage

GOODING, Feb. 19 (AP)—A hunting falcon sat quietly on the stage at the Gooding Grange hall Thursday evening while his owner and trainer, Nelson Nelson, showed movie clips and explained how the world's most able flier and fighter is trapped and trained to hunt.

Nelson, now surveyor and water forecaster for the soil conservation service, with falconry as a hobby, demonstrated his confidence in the hawk by holding him on his arm near his face as he explained the bird's ability to destroy an eye or ruin its falcons through its aim.

These falcons, Nelson said, kill only for food and do not molest human children as is often thought. They can easily kill any other bird, even an eagle, he added.

Nelson told of the ancient sport of falconry. His birds were in a recent Walt Disney movie, "The Vanishing Prairie."

The falcon and his owner were attending the Gooding soil conservation district cooperators banquet. Jack Farrar, Twin Falls master of ceremonies, introduced the board of supervisors of the Gooding district, and each reported on a phase of the conservation activities.

Don Frederickson gave background information. Bill Woody related accomplishments of the district and Sam Sims discussed the uses being made of the district equipment. Conservation farm plans were described by Doran Butler who pointed out that farmers themselves make the plans with only technical guidance from the soil conservation service.

Ray Ruby, newly elected board member, announced 1955 program plans and stated the district cooperators' day would be an annual affair.

Other portions of the program were accordion numbers presented by Charles Walker and two vocal solos by Bobby Carson. Gooding state school students, under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd Snively.

More than 70 prizes, contributed by 31 merchants of Wendell, Hagerman, Elsie, Tuffin and Gooding, were awarded as a finale to the program.

Home Circle

This is an artist's conception of a circular apartment house just patented by William Zuckerman, New York real estate developer. The building would have a central well for elevators and utilities. A family needing more space can expand their quarters easily. The landlord connects their apartment with one or more units half a floor up or half a floor down. This gives the advantage of a duplex without the long climb. The building, called the Helix, is in pie-wedge segments, the floors in each staggered from those in the next. Adjoining units can be thrown together by taking out panels and installing stairways. All living rooms and balconies are on the outer rim of the pie-wedge.

Coloradoan Will Face Theft Trial

BURLEY, Feb. 19.—Ambrose Rivera, 30, Pueblo, Colo., was arraigned this morning in the probate court of Judge H. W. Tucker on a charge of first degree burglary. He waived his preliminary hearing and bond was set at $2,000. Bond was not posted and Rivera was taken to the county jail.

He has been bound over to district court. The charge states that Rivera broke the plate glass window on Paulsen Jewelry, Burley, on Jan. 21, and stole eight Masonic emblem rings valued at $31.25 each.

Rivera was arrested Jan. Friday by police who said he was trying to sell the rings locally. The police say he lost three of the rings during his flight from the store.

Dick Powell Hurt In Skiing Mishap

Powell's actress wife, Jung Allyson, telephoned—the spokesman—this morning and said she was worried. She said she was thrown off balance and fell on the shoulder when one of his skis struck a pebble. The shoulder was put in a cast and Powell, 36, was ordered by a physician to remain in bed three or four days.

Lights Out

CALPULALPAN, Mexico, Feb. 19.—This small village has been without electric power for more than a week since officials sold the old power plant to help raise money for a new generator.

Since 1939, the number of U. S. farm families having electricity in their homes has risen from 744,000 to 3,600,000.

Completion Told For Wildcat Well

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 18.—Carter Oil company announced today completion of a rank wildcat well in Grand county, Utah, 46 miles east of Green River, Wyo.

The company said it flowed 126 barrels in the first 24 hours. Its depth was 1,430 feet, said the company, and its nearest producing well was at Cisco, 12 miles south.

The company said it planned additional drilling.

Rotarian Group Takes All-Day Tour of Idaho Air Force Base

HAILEY, Feb. 19.—A delegation of 28 members of the Hailey, Ketchum-Sun Valley Rotary clubs, paid an all-day visit Thursday to installations at Mountain Home air force base. They traveled by chartered bus.

At the base Rotarians were conducted through barracks, classrooms, living quarters and hangars. They talked to a jet pilot and were given a tour through the training classes and centers. Link trainers—used in list of actual flying—were examined by the group.

At the time of the Rotary visit, an air force major returned from a mission to Great Falls, Mont., in which he told the group he "had everything in the book thrown at him." When he first emerged from the cockpit he looked, Rotarian said, as though he had been through a steam bath. The worst problem he had on the trip, he said, was to extinguish a fire in the plane.

The guide of the group told them the runways, now built for B-47 jet bombers, will be lengthened soon to handle B-52 bombers as well. Electronic devices in the cockpit of a B-47 Rotarians were told, would furnish enough tubes for 300 television sets.

Rotarians learned that while the B-47 is a large plane, the pilot, copilot and bombardier take up only a small amount of space—the remainder is given to radar equipment, bombs and fuel.

Rotarians were told the average jet pilot age is 35 years old and has three children.

One of the pilots, talking to Rotarians, told them of the great strides made in jet planes in the last few years. The Rotarians were told that planes from Mountain Home can be ready for an emergency within a matter of hours.

Early Landmark Being Razed; First Owner Still Here

This picture of the Waverly, first hotel in Twin Falls, was taken in July, 1906. On the porch are Warren B. Hoag, owner, his son and daughter, the kitchen help and some of the early boarders who had come here from many parts of the country to settle on the Twin Falls tract. (Staff engraving)

Work has begun to tear down the Waverly hotel, 125 Third avenue south. The present owner, Harriet Williams, says the job will be completed this spring. The wing which extended to the left at the rear of the building was removed this month. (Staff photo-engraving)

"Mother Hoag", Now Blind, Reminisces As Old Waverly Hotel Being Torn Down

While her first home in Twin Falls, the Waverly hotel, 125 Third avenue south, is being torn down, 85-year-old Mrs. Harriet Hoag, blind and almost forgotten, sits in her small room at the Reed apartments, reminiscing about her early years on the Twin Falls tract.

"I live in the past," Mrs. Hoag says, "but when we make up our minds to face the difficulties of life as they come there is no limit to what we can do."

"I have always lived a full life, working hard all the time. Now it's my time to rest and wait. There are so many books I wanted to read, so much I wanted to see, but since losing my eyesight about a year ago I can't read much good to anybody."

Despite her handicap, Mrs. Hoag manages to keep active most of the day, dusting her furniture and scrubbing the kitchen and bathroom floors. "My daughter (Mrs. Wanda H. Reed) comes over just about every day and brings something to eat. I can't quit my own cooking any more," she says.

"Actually, I guess it could have been a lot worse," Mrs. Hoag states. "At one time there were 20 elderly widows in those apartments and we used to get together chatting about the old times. My memory isn't as good as it used to be, though," she says.

Being dependent upon someone to take her, Mrs. Hoag doesn't get out much any more. She attended the observance of the 50th anniversary of the Methodist church last week. "I had a wonderful time," she claims. "Couldn't see what was going on but I could sure hear the music and the speeches."

Mrs. Hoag admits she is bored and that time falls heavily on her hands. "It's worse in the evenings," she says. "During the day I manage to keep pretty busy, but after dark I really feel lonely. I listen to the radio a lot, but I can't have it on as loud as I would like. Got to think of the neighbors, you know. And then I talk on the phone."

Mrs. Hoag came to the Twin Falls tract in the latter part of 1904. Her husband, Warren B. Hoag, who died Feb. 13, 1914, came to Browner to meet her and the two children, Wanda, 7, and Carl, 9. The family originally came west to Oregon from Lowell, Mich., in 1902, because young Carl had asthma and needed a change of climate.

Mrs. Harriet Hoag, 85, now resides at the Reed apartments. She is blind and doesn't hear too well, but finds it a pleasant pastime to chat over the phone with some of her friends about the old times on the Twin Falls tract. (Staff photo-engraving)

Before we knew it, we were running a full-time hotel."

Mrs. Hoag says her guests after a while slept all over the place. "We often, when we were short on rooms, let them put their sleeping rolls in the hallways and the office," she recalls.

Among her guests from that time, some of whom still call her Mother Hoag, she remembers Harry Wohl, Sam Christensen, Jack Thorpe, Charlie Uhlig, Harry Eaton's father, Jess Eaton, Charles Kevan, Andy Wilson and the three Robinson brothers, Walter, John and Harley.

"The streets weren't paved in those days," she says. "I remember one day when it had been raining all day and the fellows would come in with loads of mud on their feet. I told them I would have the best 80 acres on the tract if I just had a spot to put all the dirt."

"The men were excited about the new land, according to Mrs. Hoag. They would come in at night, eat their evening meal and then talk about their future plans. Most of them went to bed early," she says, "because they all got up early in the morning."

"I remember two of the men who used to argue all the time," she says. "One of them was a minister from Pocatello by the name of Woodhill and the other was George Kerr, a lawyer. The reason why they argued, I think, was that Kerr had started studying for the ministry and then changed horses in mid-stream, you might say. He talked a lot about his new way of life."

"The Waverly is the only hotel in Twin Falls in which a map was murdered and Mrs. Hoag recalls the incident with clarity. She has forgotten the year, however, but knows it happened some time between 1910 and 1913.

"We had a boarder at that time by

Lieutenants Are Needed for Unit

First and second lieutenants in the U. S. army reserve holding commissions in any of the army's combat arms can obtain immediate assignment to battery B or battery C, 361st field artillery battalion, Twin Falls.

In announcing the openings, Maj. Leroy B. Anderson, Twin Falls army reserve unit adviser, said applicants may obtain further information from the unit adviser's office, 246 Third avenue east, Mondays through Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

the name of Andy Barclay," she says. "He was an enterer and came here to work for the railroad. I liked Andy. He was a soft-spoken fellow with nice manners."

"Andy used to eat his meals out. One night he came home and went upstairs to his room as usual. A short while later a woman and two small children came into his office. They asked for Andy and I told them he was in his room."

"The three of them went upstairs. It wasn't long before a fall came into the hotel wanting to know if I had seen his wife and two children. I told him they had gone to Andy's room. He ran up the stairs, opened the door to Andy's room and pulled out a gun and shot him right there."

"My daughter, who had seen the incident from the hallway, came running into the kitchen, crying: 'Mama, he shot Andy! I ran upstairs.' Mrs. Hoag recalls, "And there was Andy lying on the floor, bleeding from a bullet wound near his heart."

"Andy," I said. "You've been shot and it might be fatal. Tell me where your folks are." Fading rapidly, Andy said: "I've got a brother in Salt Lake City and one in Pocatello. My parents are dead. I'm so cold," he said."

Mrs. Hoag remembers Andy was taken to the Boyd hospital, the building now occupied by the Park hotel. He died a few hours later. Oscar Hallberg, also a railroad man, was charged with the murder and brought to trial in Twin Falls. Pleading his case were the defense attorneys William Gulhrich and William J. Horchback. Hallberg was acquitted. The court pointed out that Andy allegedly was a ladies' man and that he had taken up the Hallberg home by wooing the wife.

The Hoag family lived at Waverly until 1913. In that year the hotel was rented out and Hoag sold it several years later. "After that we owned and operated the Evergreen lodge on Kimberly road," Mrs. Hoag says. Present owner of the building is Harriet Williams. He has a dry cleaning establishment. He has two children.

Mrs. Hoag's daughter, who is 61, works as a secretary to a Kimberly physician. She has four children. Mrs. Hoag's son Carl, 63, resides at La Jolla, Calif., where he operates a dry cleaning establishment. He has two children.

Finance Talk
Given at Meet
Of Paul PTA

PAUL, Feb. 18.—Financial statements were presented at the PTA meeting Thursday evening in the school house. The bank balance was reported at $240.18. A sum of $77.47 was reported from the Leland dinner.

In the business meeting, Mrs. Blain Nielsen reported membership of the group was 95, against 109 at the same time last year. Mrs. Donna Sanford, president, stressed the need to subscribe for the PTA magazine, and a nominating committee was elected. Committee members chosen were Mrs. Deward Bell, chairman, Corvella Simpson and Ron Hawkes.

Don Blazely, school principal, told of the Paul visit of the X-ray mobile unit on March 1 and urged all people to get X-rays.

In a discussion upon whether the milk consumed by school children for lunches and afternoon snacks should be put out for bids, Ron Hawkes, a director of the Jerome Cooperative, discouraged bid buying. He said that Paul was a farm community and should patronize home products. The PTA decided to continue the milk buying without change.

A panel discussion was held. Participants were Miss Deon Johnson, Mrs. James Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Richen and Rev. Rhinhold Opp.

A birthday cake for the PTA was on display and past presidents of the group were honored. Honored were Mrs. William Barclay, first president; Mrs. Arnolda Salmie, Mrs. Roy Francisco and Mrs. Blaine Nielsen. Two numbers were presented by the Merle Stoddard dancing school. Refreshments were served.

The fifth grade room won the attendance prize.

World, National and Economic Events
Discussed by Paul Harvey at Meeting

Paul Harvey, nationally known radio newscaster, held the attention of a Magic Valley Town Hall audience Friday night at the Twin Falls Junior high school auditorium as he discussed international, national and economic problems.

Harvey, heard daily across the nation over 300 ABC radio stations, urged his listeners to return to the rugged and fearless individualism displayed by their forefathers and to demand that their first obligations are to God, themselves and their country.

The audience was packed as Harvey urged Americans to be good international neighbors but to mind their own business.

"The blueprint established by Stalin and his predecessors will not change, regardless who sits in the Kremlin. The avowed purpose of the communist conspiracy will remain the same," Harvey declared.

He predicted the United States is on the threshold of the greatest economic era in its history despite the menace of the Russian and the constant threat of war with the Soviet Union.

"We should keep our own place in order. Starting with our homes, moving to our towns, then our states, our country and then if there is anything left over we should then do our bit for the rest of the world," Harvey said.

He compared the spending of the New Deal with a period in Roman history following the crucifixion of Christ.

"The new deal was not new," Harvey said. "Three hundred years after Christ was crucified a Roman emperor put into practice the same plan employed by the new deal."

Saddler Ranks As 2-1 Choice In Next Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—Sandy Saddler, defending his world featherweight title for the first time since 1951, rates a 2-1 choice over Teddy (Red Top) Davis in Friday night's 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

For the first time since he won the crown in 1948, Saddler will be meeting an opponent other than Willie Pep in a title match. He won it from wily Willie, lost it back to him, won it again and defended, all against Pep. From 1952 to 1954 the 23-year-old New Yorker was in the army.

Since his return from service, Saddler has been beaten only once in 10 fights—by Hossein Khalfi of Algiers—but the championship was not at stake. In his latest appearance he stopped Lulu Peres at Boston, Jan. 17. Peres once was rated a sure shot to win the title.

Those who have watched Saddler since his return from the army are not sure they still have the old fire. Sandy, a veteran of 103 fights with a 138-12-2 lifetime record, hasn't made the class limit in 150 pounds since his last match with Pep.

A punishing puncher who can chop a man down with his left hook and left uppercut, Sandy has 98 official knockouts although his claims should be 101. In any event, only two or three men in the history of modern boxing have stopped more combatants.

Davis has the unenviable distinction of being one of the "longlegs" fighters ever to challenge for a title. The 31-year-old Hartford, Conn., scrapper, once managed by Pep, has a 50-47-2 since he started out in 1944.

Soprano to Present Concert In Series at Gooding Theater

LEONTYNE PRICE

GOODING, Feb. 19.—One of the fastest rising stars among sopranos today, Leontyne Price, will sing for Gooding Community Concert series at 8:15 p.m. Thursday at Schubert theater.

The one event that helped focus attention on Miss Price was her singing and acting as Juliet in the revival of the Gershwin-Heyward opera, "Porgy and Bess."

Her background and training indicate the serious purpose to which she has put unusual gifts. A native of Laurel, Miss. she completed her high school education there and became proficient as a pianist before her parents sent her to Wilberforce college in Ohio. Later she won a scholarship for advanced study at Juillard school of music in New York.

The summer of 1931 Miss Price was offered a scholarship for advanced work in the opera school at Tanglewood. During the summer of 1933 she was invited to return to the Berkshire music festival with the Boston symphony.

Miss Price's career is moving so fast she is unable to make use of her Fulbright and John Hay Whitney fellowships for further study in Europe. She won both in 1932 and as a result of her work at Juillard, she has given up, temporarily, the idea of going abroad, but hopes to make use of the awards when the pressure of concert engagements is relieved.

Calendars of World Show Varied Time

By J. HUGH FRUETT
Astronomer, Extension Division
Oregon Higher Education System

The recent article on the Julian and Gregorian calendars brought inquiries from several H.C.L. of Portland asking: "If the Julian calendar was started in 45 B.C. then when was the calendar changed to start year 1 with the birth of Christ? Why then was not Jan. 1 started on the birth of Christ? Or why not on the equinox change?"

Who are accustomed to use our present so glibly various dates, and the letters B.C. or A.D. attached to them, seem to assume that the system we employ was adopted at the time of the birth of Christ and has been in use continuously ever since.

In the history of the world numerous systems of dating have been used. The old time Jewish calendar had the year 1 starting with what corresponds to 3760 B.C., the supposed date of the creation of the world. Archbishop Usher at about A.D. 1600 decided this should be 4004 B.C.

In Roman history we find dates given by the number of years since the founding of Rome. This stood for "anno urbis condite," the Latin for "in the year of the founding of the city." This is the basis of the "ab urbe condita" or "A.U.C." dating system.

The Mohammedan calendar has for its year 1 the date we call A.D. 622. This was the year of the flight of Mohammed from Mecca. Various other methods of starting dates were employed by ancient peoples.

When then was our present system of dates, now followed by all so-called Christian nations and some others, put into use? The best authorities tell us that this method was introduced by Dionysius the Little, an abbot of a Roman monastery, in the sixth century.

The time of the year when Christians evidently used the method of dating extant in the countries in which they lived.

Dionysius' system gradually was adopted by various countries, but not without great confusion. He used March 21, about the vernal equinox and nine months before Christmas as the start of year 1.

Others used March 25, the supposed date of the annunciation. It is said this method prevailed in England until A.D. 1582.

In the eighth century after Christ, the Dionysian chronology was in use in Gaul; in England, before the close of that century. In Germany and some of the Balkans about the 11th century, the year was starting on Christmas day.

Present day scholars believe the birth of Christ most likely occurred in 4 B.C. Those who care to study further on our present system of starting dates will find much in any good encyclopedia under the topic chronology.

Church to Mark Formal Completion of Lutheran School

Memorial Lutheran school, above, will be dedicated Sunday evening by the Rev. R. C. Muhl, senior pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church. The cornerstone for the building was laid in 1944. Included in the building are facilities for eight classrooms and a library, a four-room suite of faculty offices and a parish hall (Kicker photo-staff engraving).

Date Given for Dam Buildings

OROPINO, Feb. 18 (AP)—Pacific Northwest Power company will start building Mountain Sheep and Pleasant Valley dams on the Snake river by March, 1954, if the federal power commission approves, says President Kinney M. Robinson.

He told the Clearwater Dam association that construction of Bruce's dam on the North Fork of the Clearwater must await legislation which the federal government will pay the costs chargeable to downstream power and navigation benefits.

Under a temporary PPO permit allowing it to investigate the feasibility of the Snake river dam, Robinson said the four-company combine is spending $1,200,000 testing foundation sites and drawing plans and designs.

He said both dams would be built at the same time, could start putting power on the line in four years and be completed in six.

He predicted that Bruce Eddy as well as Penny Cliff on the Middle Fork of the Clearwater would be built within 10 years. Pacific Northwest relinquished a preliminary permit to investigate Penny Cliff because of the objections of wildlife interests.

Dedication Ceremonies Are Set For Memorial Lutheran School

The completed building of the Memorial Lutheran school, Twin Falls, will be dedicated by the Rev. R. C. Muhl, senior pastor of Immanuel Lutheran church, Sunday evening, Feb. 24, at 7:30 p.m.

Portland, executive secretary of the northwest district of the Lutheran church, will deliver the sermon.

A social hour will be held in the parish hall and dinatory of the school following the services.

The operations for the school was laid in 1946. In March, 1947, the first unit was dedicated and the two classrooms and library opened. In 1949 a larger basement, permitting the addition of five classrooms, was completed. Last fall a second story was added. Final finishing and decorating was completed this week.

The school now has facilities for eight classrooms and a library, a four-room suite of faculty offices and a parish hall, situated on a seven-acre campus, with an enrollment of 238 students, the school is the largest Lutheran institution of its kind in the northwest.

Wool Session Airs Slashing Of Surpluses

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (Special)—A conference of wool growers and textile producers was called this week at the capitol to discuss possible means of cutting down large scale commodity credit corporation surplus stocks of wool.

The meeting—called by Sen. Frank A. Barrett, R., Wyo., was attended by national and state representatives of the wool growers association, high-ranking officials from the departments of agriculture and defense, and senators from the wool-producing states.

From Idaho were M. O. Cline of the Idaho Wool Growers association, and John M. Kimbrey.

James McConnell, assistant secretary of agriculture, and Frank Higgins and Thomas Pike, assistant secretaries of the army, represented the administration.

Commenting on a plan to reduce CCC wool surpluses by increased use in the military services, the army representatives discussed present defense stocks and the general program of military use of wool.

The conference moved for an immediate "compilation and clarification of statistics on all surplus and government stocks of wool" with an eye toward determining what steps must be taken to alleviate the wool industry's problems.

Barrett, who called the conference, said "I am very pleased with the results, and I hope that from it we will develop considerable benefits to the wool growing and textile industries."

Barrett termed the meeting an initial one simply to discuss the general surplus problem—and he indicated that other conferences may be called in the future.

Senators Henry Dworshak and Herman Welker were in Idaho and had informed Barrett that they hoped to attend the future meetings.

Start of Farm Windbreak

Windbreak Begins to Take on Shape for Rancher in Cassia

BURLEY, Feb. 19—A little forest and planning is beginning to pay dividends on the Herford ranch of Blaine Curtis and sons six miles south of here on highway 27, reports Glenn Bodily, Cassia county extension agent.

Bodily was referring to a stand of windbreak trees started by Curtis two years ago. The project was one of several recommended by Bodily to interested farmers and ranchers as an example of what can be accomplished in this line. Curtis' windbreak extends for 1,500 feet and is intended to provide protection against the west winds for the ranch homestead and feed lot.

The first line of trees is made up of Russian olive, set three feet apart. In two summer seasons have developed from 9-inch shoots to spreading eight-foot saplings. The bushy trees, which branch out from the base, eventually will form a solid barrier 20 to 40 feet high.

Set-one tractor lane closer to the house and lot, is a row of green ash trees, planted nine feet apart. In two years, these trees have developed from slender shoots to sturdy four-foot saplings and Bodily expects the trees will nearly double in height this year. The ash trees will be pruned to develop height and a crown which will top the row of olive trees.

Curtis is raising a bed of Norway spruce and juniper trees which have grown from two-to-four-inch seedlings to a foot or better in a year. The evergreen later will be set nine feet apart in a row 12 feet in front of the ash trees. The result will be a windbreak that will be both effective and beautiful, Bodily said.

All Curtis' trees were obtained from the state university's college of forestry nursery. Deadline for ordering seedlings for planting this year is March 1. Bodily said the trees are allotted on a first-come-first-served basis by the nursery.

Trail broadleaf trees recommended by Bodily for windbreak use in this area include black locust, golden willow, green ash and Siberian elm. Shrubbery types recommended are the Russian olive, Russian mulberry, Siberian pea, southernwood and multiflora rose. For tall evergreen, Bodily suggests the ponderosa and lodgepole pines. Best of the dense evergreens are Rocky Mountain juniper.

Norway spruce and blue spruce. Last year, Cassia county farmers planted 1,925 trees, as compared with 12,400 in 1932.

Big problem in raising a windbreak is proper care, Bodily said. Frequently a row of young trees is set out and promptly forgotten in the rush of other chores. Curtis solved this problem by planting rows of sweet corn and tomatoes among his trees. The garden crop called for regular watering and care. Much was afforded to the young trees at the same time.

Bodily recommends at least a two-row windbreak, set no closer than 100 feet to the area to be protected. Perennial weeds in the planting area should be controlled first. Best planting results are obtained in land that was plowed or row planted the previous year. Livestock will ruin a windbreak. The area must be permanently fenced against all large animals.

Bill on Water Right Backed By Mrs. Pfoest

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Rep. Orville Pfoest has written members of the Idaho state senate and house to recommend passage of a bill which would write into state water law the term "absolute priority" for future domestic and irrigation water use over the use for power production on Idaho streams.

Representative Pfoest said the bill always felt that present domestic and irrigation water rights were fully protected by state law, but that future water rights were not. "State water law should assure that any use of Idaho water for public or private power production should be subordinate to, and controlled by, the use of water for domestic consumption and irrigation uses both now and in the future," Representative Pfoest said.

"Otherwise monopolies building private dams can take away these rights in the years to come as they have in the past," he continued.

The Idaho congressman said that specific protection for present and future domestic and irrigation water rights is being written into the bill as it will soon introduce to authorize federal construction of the high dam at Hells canyon.

The text of Representative Pfoest's letter to members of the legislature follows:

"I have read with interest and satisfaction SB No. 113 which would provide that those using water for domestic and agricultural purposes shall have preference in those using the same water for manufacturing and power purposes. I sincerely hope the Idaho state legislature will take early action on this important bill.

"I have always felt that our present water rights are fully protected under the Idaho state constitution, but that our future water rights are not. State water law should assure that any use of Idaho waters for public or private power production must be subordinate to, and controlled by, the use of water for domestic consumption and irrigation uses both now and in the future.

"Although the congress of the United States has enacted legislation establishing the priority of irrigation and consumptive water use over the use of water for power production, full protection for present and future domestic and irrigation water rights is being specifically spelled out in the bill I am introducing which would authorize federal construction of the high dam at Hells canyon. I feel that such protection should also be written into the Idaho statutes in the clear and concise manner provided by

Bill Seeks Curbs On Youth Crimes

BOISE, Feb. 18.—A bill has been introduced in the Idaho house of representatives making the proposed state board of health a partner with probate courts in dealing with juvenile offenders.

Chairman Jay Merrill R. Twin Falls, of the state affairs committee, which introduced the bill, said it was a substitute for an earlier one which would have created a youth conservation board.

The bill retains county probation officers, which the earlier measure would have replaced with an eight-man field force operating under the youth conservation board.

In other respects, the board of health assumes the role in which the youth conservation board was previously cast. Until the board of health is created, its powers are vested in the probate court.

Mrs. Wells Paid Honors at Rites

Funeral services for Mrs. Mayne Wells were held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Twin Falls mortuary chapel. Lloyd Holmquist was the reader.

Mrs. O. P. Duvall was soloist. Organist was Mrs. Shirley Phillips. Pallbearers were Leo E. Kirkman, J. D. Shamba, Arthur E. Williams, June R. Kirkman, Ted Smith and Ernest F. Bietling.

Concluding rites were held in the Twin Falls cemetery.

SB No. 113, Idaho's future development and prosperity may well depend upon how ironed this protection is.

Citizen Heeds All H-Bombing Advice, Then Picks His Food

By HENRY McLEMORE
As one who not only wants to do his duty as a citizen, but who wants to collect at least a month of social security, I listen to both ears when an expert on the H-bomb speaks.

I've done everything the experts have told me to do. At least once a month I make a practice run into the desert, and at least once a week we rehearse jumping under the bed.

I have gotten so that I can imitate a alien's wall pretty good and when I kiss forth with a "Ho" and fall, mean Mary drops whatever she is doing and scoots under the bed, pulling Dilly, the bulldog, after her.

So, when I read where Dr. Stafford L. Warren, dean of UCLA's medical school, is a biological safety chief for the wartime Manhattan project and the post-war Bikini tests, advised that we all keep the trunks of our cars loaded with emergency supplies, I made it a point to find out what Dr. Warren has in the trunk of his own automobile.

It's loaded! When the doctor and his misanthropic Sunday afternoon spin, the back of their car is a combination super-market and war surplus store. They have so much stuff that it causes me to wonder if the good doctor isn't planning to set up in business if and when he has to flee a bomb attack. Could be that he has a cash register and a salesman or two tucked in the trunk.

I can't agree completely with Dr. Warren's choice of survival foods, however. For one thing, he has half a shelf of canned tomatoes. Bunch or no bunch, I couldn't go for the tomatoes unless I had some state bread to break up in them, and some salt pepper butter, and sugar to season them with. Not even the Russians are going to make me like plain canned tomatoes except on certain mornings. And even then they must be ice cold.

Wonder if it would be treasonous if I substituted canned chili for the tomatoes, or asparagus tips and a jar or two of mayonnaise.

The Warren automobile also is heavily stocked with canned beef, and while there was a time when I liked corn beef, and his brother, beef stew, my days in the "army" cured that dietary weakness—now I can't look either item in the face without having rabbits run over my grave in to-and-fro fashion. But I am a fiend for cream style corn, and could sit out in the wide open spaces for weeks waiting for the air to clear, if only I had boxes of it to eat. The same for dill pickles, shrimp cocktail, broiled whitefish, and hearts of artichoke.

What I plan to do is to stock the back of my car each day with a hot meal. I'll be troublesome, and cost a lot of money, but won't I be the envy of the desert when I open the trunk of my car and take out a tureen of spaghetti and meat sauce, steaming hot, a fresh green salad, half a broiled chicken, and a loaf of garlic bread?

I want Dr. and Mrs. Warren to know that in case we wind up in the same locality, Mary and I will be more than glad to share our hot meal with them. All I ask is that they bring the napkins and the finger bowls—and a touch of sheer-bert, if that won't be too much trouble.

An Electric Clothes Dryer, you say...

Now, there's an invention I'd call real-GEORGE!

Yes, General Washington, we've had a lot of inventions since your day, but this one really IS something! And you can't tell how wonderful it is just by looking at it! You see, housewives of today are ever so much busier, and they don't have any hired help. An electric clothes dryer saves them miles of walking (17 miles a year, mind you!), tons of lifting, it cuts drying time to minutes, cuts ironing time to zero, and cuts ironing time in half! In short, an Electric Clothes Dryer is the World's Greatest Wife-Saver!

Shoshone Honors Employee for 35 Years of Service With City

SHOSHONE, Feb. 19.—A wrist watch was presented Bert Terry, city water superintendent here Thursday, as a gift from the city in recognition of his 35th anniversary as a city employee.

Terry has seen Shoshone's city streets turn from dirt to oil, the irrigation ditch, the water system, the metal pipes, the asphalt-covered streets improved with grass and irrigation, additions to the city park, the replacement of the old water system, the best first insurance rates in the state available to Shoshone residents, the city water system changed from one of the poorest in the state to one of the best.

Terry has had a hand in all of it. From 1900 Terry worked at odd jobs for the city, going to work in February, 1900, for a few days each week. By spring he was given full-time employment. He did street water works, cemetery and general maintenance jobs in those days.

He can find any water line in the city and he is the only person here still working who was on the job in 1901 when the wooden pipe lines were replaced by the iron pipes. The water works and the city streets were mended and full of leaks.

The summer of 1902 was spent driving a sprinkling wagon, not for irrigation, but to keep city streets dry. He made a trip over city streets, both north and south side, each day. In 1904 Terry was promoted to the position of water superintendent. In those days, the city was plowed with a team and small grader. Now and then north and south rail streets were cleared but not the downtown.

When Harry Breanahan, city superintendent, resigned in 1934, Terry carried on the work alone for one month before M. L. Webb was hired to take charge of the streets, alleys, park and cemetery. Terry then was given the city water system.

For equipment Terry had two teams of horses, a second hand pickup, dump wagon, sprinkler and sidewalk grader.

During the winter of 1934 the Idaho emergency relief association put a group of men to work on what was then a new water system. The park was enlarged in 1935 when the "island" was purchased from Mrs. Nellie Smith. The water tank was run uphill through a ditch from the "dill" ranch to the cemetery when Terry went to work for the city. Later the water tank was moved from the cemetery and flooding type of irrigation was practiced until about 1930 years ago when the city maintenance district was formed and a sprinkler system of irrigation installed. Water for the city comes from the Gooding-Mott ditch.

Following Webb's death in 1940 Terry became superintendent of the city streets as well as the water system. The position he holds today.

In 1937 a small well was drilled east of highway 90 just north of the city and was used for drinking water since considerable objection was raised over the strong chlorine taste in the city water which was taken from the Little Wood river. That well was used until 1951 when tests began returning with a negative report.

The water tank fell at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 18, 1948, after a repair job on the tank. The tank had been erected in 1904. The tank made company replaced buildings destroyed by the fall and also put up the present tank but that wasn't done immediately and water had to be put in the mains through another source.

The little well north of town was given a capacity test this morning. People hauled water by the bucket and filled everything from the kitchen to the bathtub, thinking it would perhaps be for one or two months before water was available through the city system.

"Through Terry's knowledge of pipe locations in the city he had water back in the lines before the noon while the water was being hauled. The water was put over the filter and insulation was put over the filter. Then the snow came. It was snow around the clock that winter.

One of the two wells for the new water system was first put to use on April 28, 1952. The second was in operation a year later. Some people claim they haven't as good pressure was installed. Terry in charge of the work.

Grass was planted at the new park site and 40 trees planted.

On looking ahead, Terry has seen for widened streets, especially on highway 93 through the city. He would like to see the curbing removed, set back to the park and a four-lane highway made through the city. Vacant lots can be greatly improved by larger pipes for the irrigation system eventually will be needed, he feels.

The United States had 56,360,000 births during the past 10 years.
